DESCRIPTION

The Railway is a detached pub situated in a prominent raised position just off the main road on the outskirts of Sheffield, a ten-minute walk from the busy Meadowhall shopping complex. The pub benefits from its proximity to nearby residential areas, local amenities, and factory units, all within walking distance. Located north of Sheffield, the pub is approximately five miles from the city centre, which has a population of around 550,000. Sheffield boasts excellent transport links by road, M1 motorway and trains from the city centre with direct links to Leeds and Birmingham. The city's bus network also provides comprehensive coverage of Sheffield and its surrounding areas, with links to other towns in South Yorkshire and beyond.

Pub Layout

The pub operates from two compact rooms: a main bar and a lounge, both serviced by a central servery. At the rear, a small lobby contains both the gents' and ladies' toilets. The lounge, located on the right, seats up to 20 people with a combination of fixed benches and loose seating, complemented by a carpeted floor and soft furnishings. On the left, the bar features benched and loose low-level seating, wooden floors, and flat-screen TVs. Additionally, a compact but well-equipped kitchen is located off the lounge. Outside, the pub offers a small front patio, a large enclosed garden with decking to the side and rear, a smoking shelter, and a rear car park accommodating up to 10 cars.

TRADING STYLE

Located in a prominent main road location, this wet-led community pub is a local favourite, attracting regular footfall from nearby factories and residential neighbourhoods. Known for its cosy atmosphere and strong sense of community, the pub offers a warm welcome to all who walk through its doors. The pub's popularity is enhanced by its strong rhythm of the week, including quiz nights, karaoke, and televised sports, making it a go-to spot for social gatherings. Additionally, its well-loved Sunday lunch food offer adds to the pub's appeal, drawing in both regulars and new visitors alike. With a loyal customer base and a reputation for being a hub of local activity, this pub is more than just a place to drink—it's a cornerstone of the community.
